Aztecs' Five Suns Creation Myth And Prophecy | Ancient Pages

The story of creation, according to the Aztecs, is actually a story of birth, death, and rebirth. When the world is destroyed, it's born again through the sacrifice of one of the gods, and so through the birth of a new sun. So you'll often hear of the legend of the five suns - the five births of the world. Five suns, and so five different worlds, have existed.

The fifth sun however is sometimes said to be a god named Full-of-Sores. In this version of the myth, the gods convened in darkness to choose a new sun, who was to sacrifice himself by jumping into a gigantic bonfire. The two volunteers were the young son of Tlaloc and Chalchiuhtlicue, Old Moon god, and the old Full-of-Sores. It was believed that Full-of-Sores was too old to make a good sun, but both were given the opportunity to jump into the bonfire.
