As you can see, there's a lot of negative space. The design only has 4 elements: a graphic image illustrated by a white circle, the name of the brand, the slogan and a tiny menu section on the right-hand side. Because it's a homepage, it must inform the visitor what the website is about (or whose website it is).

Balance is all about how your elements weigh in the visual, and it can be achieved through symmetry, asymmetry, or radial symmetry. Shapes, colors, objects, textures, or values can create balance in a design. This is an essential principle because imbalance can cause discomfort for the viewer. Image credits. 2.
