This is a unique aircraft that can not be duplicated at any cost. I operated an aircraft parts business specializing in PA-23s for 25 years and have parted out over 125 of them. We know all of the issues pertaining to the Aztec line and at the time had a very large comprehensive inventory of parts to utilize for this restoration.

The same year, Piper produced an upgraded version with 250 hp (186 kW) Lycoming O-540 engines and a swept vertical tail as the PA-23-250, and named it Aztec. The first models came in a five-seat configuration in 1959. In 1961 a longer nosed variant, the Aztec B, entered production. Later Aztecs were equipped with IO-540 fuel-injected engines and six-seat capacity, and remained in production ...
