In wonder, love, and praise. [10] It has been suggested that Wesley's words were written specifically for the tune by Purcell to which Dryden's song had been set, and to which the hymn's words themselves were later set (under the tune name "Westminster") by John Wesley in his Sacred Melody, the "annex" to his Select Hymns with tunes annex (1761 et seq.).

The last verse reads: changed from glory into glory, till in heaven we take our place, till we cast our crowns before thee, lost in wonder, love and praise! The way we view things, the way we see them, our whole vision of the world, depends on what insight and perception we possess, on what colours our vision, catches our imagination and inspires our sense of wonder and of awe.

~~Sherborne Abbey|Lost in Wonder, Love and Praise~~

That is, that we will become “lost...in wonder, love, and praise.” While we come to God for direction, for purpose, for insight, for guidance, for motivation, and for the level-headed leading of the Lord, we also have the hope and expectation for that fleeting experience of spiritual ecstasy where we become “lost in wonder, love, and praise.”

~~The story behind the hymn—The Telegraph~~

Love is a romantic gesture, a tender hug, or a pledge of fidelity. It's a little strange to apply this notion of what love is to our relationship with God (“giving God a hug” is kind of a bizarre image). In reality, however, love has less to do with affection and more to do with the way we order experience of the world.
